Story

LARAMIE LAD, a hard-riding Wyoming cowpuncher, decides to take a well-earned vacation and goes to visit an old friend who is running a summer camp for city folks. On the way his horse drops in his tracks and Laramie is forced to proceed on foot. He runs into a shooting affair and learns that a girl and her aged father are in distress, being victims of a swindler's ruse to defraud them of their mining property. The cowpuncher abandons his vacation plans and sets about foiling the plans of the crooks. The father of the girl is captured by the plotters, who try to get him to tell the whereabouts of the secret entrance to the mine. He escapes after many hours of torture and, thinking the mine his only haven of safety, he retreats to the bottom of the shaft where he lapses into unconsciousness. Meanwhile the mine becomes flooded and Laramie, learning of the old man's plight, goes to his rescue not a moment too soon. The crooks are brought to justice; Laramie Lad puts the mine on a paying basis and winds things up to a satisfactory finish.
